

---

TONY REDHEAD - <https://tonyredhead.com>

I have worked for the past 37 years in the evolution and acceptance of computer imaging from a hardware and software perspective since joining U.K. digital pioneer Quantel in 1984.

Different technologies came and went during those years, but for the past 15 years, 360° documentary photography has been my passion.

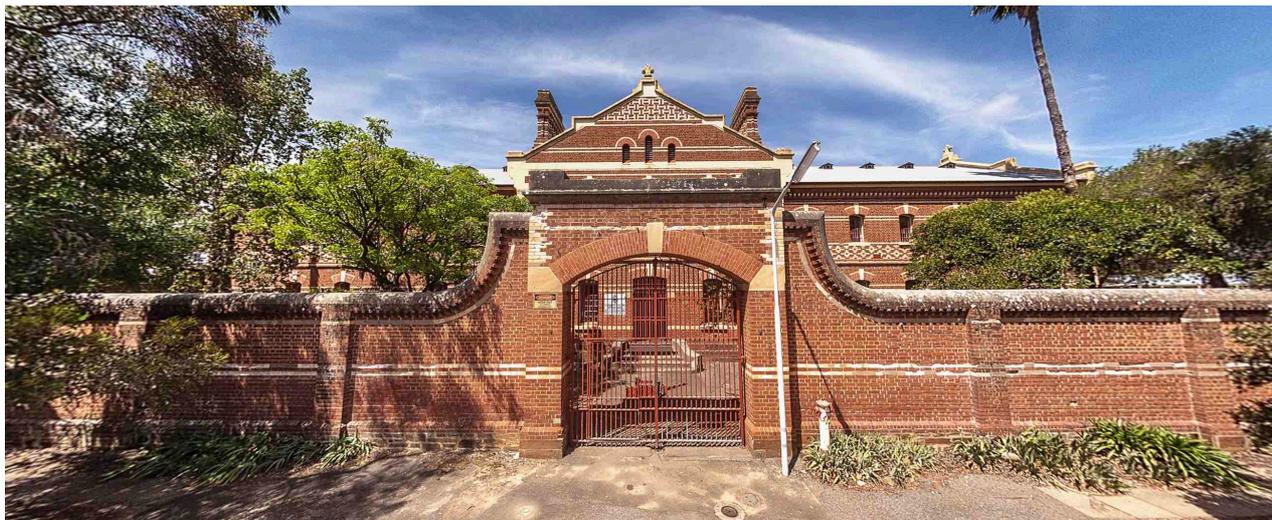

Fortunate to have had the opportunity to travel extensively, I have been drawn to document locations of historical relevance during these travels.

Visting a historic church on the islands of Papua New Guinea to an abandoned WWII military installation in the Kuril Islands and exploring remnants of institutions past, such as Z-Ward, and timely reminders of our frailty the Torrens Island Quarantine Station, the desire to document, preserve and share these experiences has been rewarding and is ongoing.

Historic Anglican Church - Samari Island, Papua New Guinea

---

Gates to Z-Ward : Prison for the Criminally Insane - Adelaide, South Australia

Radar Installation : Abandoned Military base - Matua Island, Sea of Oshkosh

Fumigation Chamber :Torrens Island Quarantine Station, South Australia

---